POLLOCK: ONE: NUMBER 31, 1950

Museum of Modern Art. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Pollock: One: Number 31, 1950, Charles F. Stuckey, In the late 1940s, Jackson Pollock, now recognized as one of the most important Abstract Expressionist artists, began experimenting with a new method of painting that involved dripping, flinging and pouring paint onto a canvas laid flat on the ground. This process engaged his entire body, and the resulting images were a direct index of the energy he expended to create these...
